Boundary Stone Plaque Unveiled

A bronze plaque marking the site of Northeast Boundary Stone No. One was unveiled Thursday at 7849 Eastern ave. by the Mary Washington Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, and the National Park Service. They shared its cost.

The stone, one of 40 erected in 1791, was lost, probably during construction of a building nearby. The plaque, set flush with the sidewalk, gives an account of its origin.

It was presented to the government by Mrs. Cloyd H. Marvin, Chapter president.
